NATURAL BABY RASH CREAM

• Baby rash (and/or diaper rash, miliaria/milia, prickly heat) is any skin bumps or blotches. The rash can be red, skin-colored, or slightly lighter or darker than skin color. The delicate skin of the diaper area will be slightly red and possibly warm to the touch. With continued irritation, the redness can become deeper and spread out to cover a larger area. More severe cases can also include small pimples or blisters in addition to redness.
• Diaper rash is a skin irritation caused by prolonged dampness and interaction of urine and feces with the skin. Yeast diaper rash is caused by a type of yeast called candida, which also causes thrush in the mouth. Heat rash, caused by the blockage of the pores that lead to the sweat glands, is most common in very young children but can occur at any age. When the weather is hot or humid, the blockage of the sweat glands is held within the skin and forms little red bumps or occasionally small blisters. Prickly heat causes rash or blotches during hot weather or in a hot environment (the same as heat rash). Milia/miliaria are tiny white, clear or red bumps on the skin (usually on the face and chest). They are also called heat rash or prickly heat.
