Current treatments for Rosacea include the following: (i) corticosteroid drugs, (ii) retinoids (such as isotretinoin), (iii) antibiotics (tetracycline's, erythromycin, clindamycin etc.), and (iv) metronidazole that has an effect on papules and pustules, but is not effective against skin redness, telangiectases or flushing. Unfortunately, most of these treatments are associated with severe side effects.
- In many cases, antibiotics and hormone therapy are the only recourse, but with the use of Natural Rosacea Cream positive effects are apparent usually within three days of the start treatment.
